1970s

The city opens Springhill Lake Recreation Center. Members of City Council and others attended the groundbreaking.

Jerry Goodin (age 91) and Joseph "Pop" Cipriano (age 93), both beloved members of the community, are the Labor Day Parade Marshals. Sandy Lange, photograph by A. Kathleen Lefever

Construction of Greenbriar, a condominium townhouse development in Greenbelt East, begins. Greenbelt Museum

Eleanor Roosevelt High School opens on Greenbelt Road. Eleanor Roosevelt High School Yearbook, 1978

Windsor Green, a 642-townhouse development in Greenbelt East was under construction from 1976-1980. Hunting Ridge, another condominium development was completed in 1974 and annexed in 1984. Greenbelt Museum

In a landmark case, the Supreme Court decides in favor of the News Review and its president, Alfred Skolnik, in a libel suit brought by area developer Charles Breiter. The News Review reprinted earlier coverage in its November 30, 1972, 25th Anniversary issue. See panel to the right for more information. Greenbelt News Review

Jeanette Gordy runs for City Council. She is the first African American to run for office in Greenbelt. Greenbelt News Review

The Greenbelt Branch of the Prince George’s County Memorial Library is dedicated. The groundbreaking took place in 1968. Greenbelt Museum

Easter is celebrated every year in Greenbelt with a Recreation Department Easter egg hunt. Greenbelt News Review

Eleanor Roosevelt High School Yearbook, 1978

The city opens Springhill Lake Recreation Center. Members of City Council and others attended the groundbreaking. Greenbelt Museum

Windsor Green, a 642-townhouse development in Greenbelt East was under construction from 1976-1980. Hunting Ridge, another condominium development was completed in 1974 and annexed in 1984. Greenbelt Museum

Jeanette Gordy runs for City Council. She is the first African American to run for office in Greenbelt. Greenbelt News Review

The Greenbelt Branch of the Prince George’s County Memorial Library is dedicated. The groundbreaking took place in 1968. Greenbelt Museum

In a landmark case, the Supreme Court decides in favor of the News Review and its president, Alfred Skolnik, in a libel suit brought by area developer Charles Breiter. The News Review reprinted earlier coverage in its November 30, 1972, 25th Anniversary issue. See panel to the right for more information. Greenbelt News Review

Jeanette Gordy runs for City Council. She is the first African American to run for office in Greenbelt. Greenbelt News Review

The Greenbelt Branch of the Prince George’s County Memorial Library is dedicated. The groundbreaking took place in 1968. Greenbelt Museum

In a landmark case, the Supreme Court decides in favor of the News Review and its president, Alfred Skolnik, in a libel suit brought by area developer Charles Breiter. The News Review reprinted earlier coverage in its November 30, 1972, 25th Anniversary issue. See panel to the right for more information. Greenbelt News Review

Jeanette Gordy runs for City Council. She is the first African American to run for office in Greenbelt. Greenbelt News Review

The Greenbelt Branch of the Prince George’s County Memorial Library is dedicated. The groundbreaking took place in 1968. Greenbelt Museum

In a landmark case, the Supreme Court decides in favor of the News Review and its president, Alfred Skolnik, in a libel suit brought by area developer Charles Breiter. The News Review reprinted earlier coverage in its November 30, 1972, 25th Anniversary issue. See panel to the right for more information. Greenbelt News Review

Jeanette Gordy runs for City Council. She is the first African American to run for office in Greenbelt. Greenbelt News Review

The Greenbelt Branch of the Prince George’s County Memorial Library is dedicated. The groundbreaking took place in 1968. Greenbelt Museum

In a landmark case, the Supreme Court decides in favor of the News Review and its president, Alfred Skolnik, in a libel suit brought by area developer Charles Breiter. The News Review reprinted earlier coverage in its November 30, 1972, 25th Anniversary issue. See panel to the right for more information. Greenbelt News Review

Jeanette Gordy runs for City Council. She is the first African American to run for office in Greenbelt. Greenbelt News Review

The Greenbelt Branch of the Prince George’s County Memorial Library is dedicated. The groundbreaking took place in 1968. Greenbelt Museum

In a landmark case, the Supreme Court decides in favor of the News Review and its president, Alfred Skolnik, in a libel suit brought by area developer Charles Breiter. The News Review reprinted earlier coverage in its November 30, 1972, 25th Anniversary issue. See panel to the right for more information. Greenbelt News Review

Jeanette Gordy runs for City Council. She is the first African American to run for office in Greenbelt. Greenbelt News Review

The Greenbelt Branch of the Prince George’s County Memorial Library is dedicated. The groundbreaking took place in 1968. Greenbelt Museum

In a landmark case, the Supreme Court decides in favor of the News Review and its president, Alfred Skolnik, in a libel suit brought by area developer Charles Breiter. The News Review reprinted earlier coverage in its November 30, 1972, 25th Anniversary issue. See panel to the right for more information. Greenbelt News Review

Jeanette Gordy runs for City Council. She is the first African American to run for office in Greenbelt. Greenbelt News Review

The Greenbelt Branch of the Prince George’s County Memorial Library is dedicated. The groundbreaking took place in 1968. Greenbelt Museum

In a landmark case, the Supreme Court decides in favor of the News Review and its president, Alfred Skolnik, in a libel suit brought by area developer Charles Breiter. The News Review reprinted earlier coverage in its November 30, 1972, 25th Anniversary issue. See panel to the right for more information. Greenbelt News Review

Jeanette Gordy runs for City Council. She is the first African American to run for office in Greenbelt. Greenbelt News Review